In the Union and American of the 12th inst, is a communication over the signature of "Amicus," from Warren County, giving an account of speeches made there by the Hon. WM. B. STOKES, Bell Elector, and Col. H. M. WATTERSON, Douglas Elector. When the Union and American penned its complaint against "the leaven of Know-Nothingism" and "the rowdy element of the Opposition" which it says exhibited themselves in the Breckinridge Democratic meeting on the corner of Broad and Market Streets Tuesday night, it had probably lost sight of the communication of "Amicus." We make an extract or two from that communication:

While he [Col. Watterson] was thus laboring, some life-long Democrat, houry with age in the service, would now and then ask some "very annoying questions," which interrupted and fatigued bim very much. One asked the following poser: "Col. Watterson, did you not go off after strange gods, following the lead of John Bell, in the days of Judge White; and did you not then, as now, try to make the old Jacksonian Democracy believe that yourself and Judge White were the only true Democracy?" I tell you he was stumped; his writhings and contortions were fine sport to the boys, but death to the poor frog.

Col. Stokes, our Reprosentative, sweated for three long hours, speaking to all appearance against time, in order to preclude any reply. He was also "very much annoyed with impertinent questions" put by his impertinent con-

The Italics are the Union and American's, or its correspondent's. Here it is exultingly proclaimed that "some life-long Democrat, hoary with age in the service, would now and then" ask the speaker of another party "some very annoying questions which fatigued him very much," and that another speaker was "very much annoyed by Impertinent questions;" but when a "Democratic". speaker asks a question and somebody in the crowd answers it, there is a fuss made about it, and that somebody is called a rowdy of the Opposition.

Further comment is unnecessary.
